OK. Sound's good. Tell me if we need to revise our approach to gain DNA-samples.

Dear Sumi,

Yes, indeed. Everything started out fine. The packages have been sent out this month. The first DNA-samples have already arrived. We estimate that about 8% of the arriving samples meet the requirements for apix. Still can't predict the amount of returning samples.

What's the current status of apix3.12? I need an update on the proceedings. Did the project start successfully? So far Vienna has been a promising source for suitable DNA, is that true for apix as well?
